Patrick died at the age of 33 from complications of Idiopathic Thrombocytopenic Purpura (ITP). The care Patrick and his family received from nurses while he was ill inspired this unique means of thanking nurses for making a profound difference in the lives of their patients and patient families.

Honorees receive a certificate of commemoration, a hand-carved sculpture called A Healer's Touch, and Cinnabon® cinnamon rolls, one of Patrick's favorites.

Beyond Physical Safety: Our Commitment to Preventing All Harm

At Garnet Health, our commitment to zero preventable harm extends beyond physical safety. It includes the emotional and psychological well-being of every patient, family member and employee who places their trust in our organization.

Preventing physical harm remains a fundamental priority, from reducing falls and hospital-acquired infections to strengthening medication safety and clinical reliability. Equally important is recognizing that communication, compassion, dignity and respect help prevent emotional harm.

When a patient feels unheard, a family is left uncertain or an employee is hesitant to speak up, it is a reminder that safety is more than the absence of physical injury.

As we close out 2026 and look toward 2027, we remain focused on strengthening safety through high reliability, a just culture, patient engagement and continuous improvement. Every interaction is an opportunity to prevent harm, build trust and improve the care experience.

Together, we can create an environment where every patient feels safe, every voice is valued, and every individual is treated with dignity and respect.
